About the Conference

India will account for 36 out of the 440 emerging cities in the world by 2025, according to McKinsey Global. Globalisation and urbanisation make cities attractive target for violence and terrorism. Important cities like London, Mumbai, Madrid, Moscow, Sharm el-Sheikh etc., have been targeted to strip nations of its economic strength. An important goal for any nation is to ensure an effective emergency response mechanism to build a unified security fabric.

At the core of security fabric of any city is information technology that enables seamless integration of various individual components into a complete, consolidated view of the city's security infrastructure. Data analytics will therefore play an important role in curbing crime and terrorism. Cyber security is another important area that needs to be strengthened besides an effective counter-terror strategy encompassing intelligence, police and legal reforms.

To debate and discuss such issues, FICCI is organising a two-day conference on Homeland Security 2014 - Safe and Secure Nation on July 24-25, 2014 at FICCI Federation House, New Delhi. The conference proposes to bring together experts from the government, other enforcement agencies and the industry to discuss and debate security challenges to the nation, fair use of technology and issues of capacity building that will help mitigate security threats to the nation.

Draft Agenda

Day 1: July 24, 2014 (Thursday)

Time	Session
0930 - 1000 Hrs	Registration
1000 - 1100 Hrs	Inaugural Session
1100 - 1130 Hrs	Tea / Coffee Break
1130 - 1200 Hrs	Keynote Addresses
1200 - 1330 Hrs	Session I: State session (CCTNS project -The future of effective policing)
	Crime and Criminal Tracking Network & Systems (CCTNS) Project aims at creating a comprehensive and integrated system for enhancing the efficiency and effectiveness of policing. A nationwide networked infrastructure for evolution of IT-enabled state-of-the-art tracking system is under process.
	The session will highlight some of the success stories from various states. It will draw attention to the bottlenecks faced by the project and also to avenues of further developing it in future. Senior officials of the state police forces will also put forward technological requirements of the project, which could be addressed through a PPP model.
1330 - 1430 Hrs	Lunch
1430 - 1600 Hrs	Session 2: Analytics for pre-emptive policing
	Enforcement agencies across the world today are under pressure to counter the rising threats of organised crime and terrorism. A large number of criminal incidents are found to have complex inter-state and international linkages, possible connection with other nefarious activities like smuggling of arms, drugs, printing and circulation of fake currency notes, infiltration from across the borders etc.
	Given the advancement in technology in terms of search and investigation tools, entity resolution, relationship, pattern and predictive analysis, and choice of multiple service delivery channels, the future of security would lie in better use of analytics to prevent and respond to crime. Existing video surveillance systems are getting integrated with sophisticated computer algorithms and analytics layer to process large volumes of real-time video data. The session will showcase technologies used in analytic for pre-emptive policing.
1600 - 1630 Hrs	Tea / Coffee Break
1630 - 1800 Hrs	Session 3: R&D for effective and sustainable security
	Increasing urbanisation and rapid increase in population of cities have lead to increased complexities in law enforcement. Technology is a force multiplier that can help enforcement agencies cope with the increasing demands and complex security challenges which arise from rapid urbanisation. There is a need to develop products specifically for internal security requirements. Currently, either the equipments which cater to the needs of various security agencies are not available easily in the country, or are very expensive to deploy. R&D therefore is a necessity.
	The session will bring forth various innovative technologies from around the world that have helped in controlling and curbing crime and terrorist activities.
1800 Hrs	Networking Cocktails

Day 2: July 25, 2014 (Friday)

Time	Session
1000 - 1130 Hrs	Session 4: Growth and need of cyber security for securing homeland
	IT has exposed the user to enormous data. However, it has also added a new dimension to security. Driven by a growing concern for the potential vulnerability of networked societies, together with an increasing number of disruptions in the cyber-domain, many countries have taken steps to better understand the vulnerabilities of and threats to their critical information infrastructure. Therefore cyber security should be an important focus in homeland security.
	The session will explore ways and means to secure the country's cyber space. Experts will put together important dynamics of cyber security and discuss possibilities of creating a foolproof security apparatus.
1130 - 1145 Hrs	Tea / Coffee Break
1145 - 1315 Hrs	Session 5: Ensuring fair and transparent procurement for internal security solutions
	The growing concerns for homeland security in recent times focus not only on the challenges that the country will face, but the process of resource mobilisation and upgradation in the security sector. The demand for modernisation of the security forces has increased dramatically. In the current scenario, the requirement for modern equipments is huge- ranging from surveillance equipments for border security to internal security operations in difficult terrains. Therefore, the procurement process for different central police organisations are need based, and varies considerably according to the size of the contract.
	The panel will talk about the need for re-visiting security procurement procedures and manual. The session will focus on the pros and cons of moving beyond the 'lowest cost selection' method in security procurement deals and also of standardising the process for setting and modifying specifications of items for procurement.
1315 Hrs	Closing & Lunch
